

Sample Faculty-Led Itinerary

Development Studies

Throughout this course, students will be able to form concrete linkages between their classroom studies, theories, models and policies with real world practice of international development. Students will examine and reflect on the challenges and complex realities of international development in the developing world and explore courses of action that alleviate such challenges. Through thoughtful discussions and lectures with guest speakers, students will experience firsthand the framework and various approaches towards the sustainable development goals and national development aspirations. Visits to community-based organisations will introduce students to the impact of grassroots organizations and their contribution to improving quality of life through a wide array of development initiatives. Through these initiatives, students will be able to examine and compare the social challenges faced by different communities in Uganda. Opportunities to interact with expatriates and professionals in Uganda will also form an integral part of this course – including cultural activities, safari trip and “survival language” lessons.
